Bartenders also usually maintain the Supplies and Inventory for the Bar. Historically, Bartending was a Profession with a Low Reputation. It was perceived through the Lens of Ethical Issues and Various Legal Constraints related to the Serving of Alcohol. The Pioneers of Bartending as a Serious Profession appeared in the 19th Century. "Professor" Jerry Thomas established the Image of the Bartender as a Creative Professional. Harry Johnson wrote a Bartending Manual and established the First Bar Management Consulting Agency. At the turn of the 20th Century, slightly less than Half the Bartenders in London were Women, such as Ada Coleman. "Barmaids", as they were called, were usually the Daughters of Tradesmen or Mechanics or, occasionally, Young Women from the "Better-Born" Classes who had been "thrown upon their Own Resources" and needed an Income.

The Bartending Profession was generally a Second Occupation, used as Transitional Work for Students to gain Customer Experience or to save Money for University Fees. The Reason for this is because Bartenders in Tipping Countries such as Canada and the United States, can make Significant Money from their Tips. This View of Bartending as a Career is changing around the World, however, and Bartending has become a Profession by Choice rather than Necessity.

Winning Cocktail Competitions is one of the Fastest Ways to become well known as a Skilled Bartender / Mixologist. It can open the Door to Tons of Career and Consulting Opportunities “ from Private Consulting Gigs to Jobs as Prestigious as Brand Ambassadorships. Like all Human History, that of American Drink-Mixing if full of Change. We often speak of Drinks having been changed or dated-up by Innovative Bar-Tenders. But, the Big Changes have often been Broad and Cultural “• and sometimes Technological. These Changes or Shifts have often affected how we think and talk about Drinks more than they have changed the Constituent Nature of the Drinks, themselves.

For this 4th Edition, "The Bartenders Society" organized in Paris the First International Cocktails & Soft Cocktails Contest, with the Announce of a New Member on the Team, Johanna Le Pape (Experte in "PÃ¢tisserie Bien-Etre"). The Theme to be respected is "When the World of Pastry meets Mixology" for either the Cocktail or the Soft Cocktail.
